FOREWORD

As it is well known, one of the journals that has achieved excellent recognition among the international reading public interested in the various aspects and problems of the Balkan Peninsula is BALKAN STUDIES. It is a biannual publication of the Institute for Balkan Studies, established in 1960.

To meet the need for a cumulative index, the Institute has already published in 1984 an index covering the first twenty volumes of the periodical. This has proved to be of great help to research workers and the general public.

Keeping the promise to repeat this task, we have published the present cumulative index covering volumes 21-30 (1980-1989), which will make possible the location of material by author, editor, translator, as well as by subject.

This task has been undertaken by Ms. Thomy Verrou-Karakostas, philologue and librarian, with the assistance of Nikos Zaikos, researcher at the Institute. The typesetting of the text was realized with the valuable help of Ms. Xanthippi Kotzageorgi, researcher at the Institute.

The main body of the index consists of author, editor, translator and subject entries to articles, as well as books reviewed. All entries are arranged in the latin alphabetical order. As far as book reviews are concerned, the name of the reviewer appears always after the indications Review or Review essay.

The main body of the index is followed by a listing of the book reviews under the names of the reviewers in alphabetical order.

Paging is continuous in both issues of each volume of BALKAN STUDIES, so only the volume number is mentioned in parenthesis for each entry.

The translation of titles in any other language besides English, French, German and Italian is given in English in brackets.

We hope this cumulative index will prove itself as useful as the one published before.

Director of the Institute
